He urged the community to contribute in any form—money, land, labor—and inspired a collective movement rooted in selfless service. Driven by this missionary zeal, the institution grew rapidly: upgraded to middle school in 1933, high school in 1935, and Higher Secondary School by 1961 — now functioning as a Senior Secondary School. Milestones in Growth Over the decades, the Ramgarhia Educational Council has established a series of esteemed institutions: 1945: Ramgarhia Middle School, Nangal Majja 1946: Ramgarhia Arts College 1948: Industrial Training Centre 1950: Ramgarhia Polytechnic College — Punjab’s pioneering polytechnic institute 1952: Ramgarhia Model School 1956: Ramgarhia College of Education & Art and Craft Teachers Training 1958: Ramgarhia Girls High School (now Sr. Sec. School) 1963: Desh Bhagat Memorial High School, Kultham 1970: Guru Nanak Bhai Laloo Ramgarhia College for Women 1978: Community Development Cell (under Govt. of India Scheme) 1986: M.Ed. Classes 1987: S. Mohan Singh Memorial Hospital 2003: Ramgarhia Institute of Engineering & Technology, Phagwara 2007: MBA Programs at RIET 2009: Ramgarhia Institute of Health Sciences & Research 2012: Vocational Training & Rural Development 2013: Evening Wing of Ramgarhia Polytechnic College 2015: Ramgarhia Institute of Management & Advanced Studies These institutions, managed under the Ramgarhia Educational Council (registered under Section 26 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913), have consistently upheld the values of excellence, equity, and empowerment. Carrying Forward the Legacy The Council has been shaped by the dynamic stewardship of great leaders like Late S. Mohan Singh Hadiabadi, Late S. Mela Singh Bhogal, Late S. Pritam Singh Bhogal, and Late S. Bharpur Singh Bhogal, whose contributions remain etched in the institution’s foundation. Today, this proud legacy continues to flourish under the visionary leadership of Mrs. Manpreet Kaur Bhogal — a dynamic and progressive leader dedicated to advancing education and empowering society. A journey that began with a single school now stands as a beacon of learning and leadership across Punjab.
